We knew this day would come; the day when people would forget who the true ruler is. As a result, wickedness spread throughout the land, throughout every kingdom. This land was known as Qanas. The Creator became enraged, sending a supernatural being to destroy all the wicked, sparing few who still believed in Him. However, after many years, Qanas thrived once more. As the population increased resources diminished, causing an outbreak of war and chaos. When all seemed lost, a group of beings called Nephilims entered the region. A wise race bringing order to the realm. The Nephilims are a gifted race, superior to others and placing themselves as kings, calling themselves Centurions. Peace endures for centuries, however, in time their greed for power causes a civil war in the land. During the war, knowing the Centurions could not be trusted; three kingdoms broke away and headed far to the north. After the war, the grand city Fenris is rebuilt. One Centurion remains, ruling all of Qanas and the neighboring lands, using the people as his footstool to conquer all in his way. To ensure his reign would not be cut short, he kills all siblings and descendants of the Nephilims, except one, who must choose his own fate.

Wasn't ready for it to end!

By Miki

People who are fans of fantasy/adventure stories will love this one. Mr. Love writes a saga that will draw you in and make you part of his world. I felt as if I could see the events of the book playing out in front of my face. I very quickly got to know his characters.

The storyline involves, among other things, young men coming of age in a world that is much harder than they ever imagined. The world as they thought they knew it crumbles around their ears as they learn to cope in ways the reader cannot predict.

The ending left me wanting the next one as soon as possible. I can't wait to get back to that world and see what happens next!
